DECLASSIFIED

December 1, 1961 - Friday

That nice fellow, the Icelandic Ambassador, paid a return call on me this morning. Next came the Vietnamese Ambassador, who is full of vague theories as to how his country should reform its governmental structure. I was not impressed by their practicality.

We also talked about the Congo, and he gave me a letter sent by him on the subject to Dean Rusk on November 29. Personally, I agree with his reasoning. I have long thought that the unrealistic approach of the US to this problem may, if not corrected, lead to disaster.
